The 2013 Interior Fitout Awards heralds the new benchmark for fitouts

25 May 2015

Thirteen shopfitters from around Australia were heralded for their extraordinary work against a highly competitive field at the 2012/2013 The Laminex Group/ASOFIA Interior Fitout Awards at the Australian Shop and Office Fitting Industry Association's (ASOFIA) 18th National Conference in Hamilton Island recently.

As the ultimate accolade for ASOFIA's member's projects completed within Australia over the past 18 months, The Interior Fitout Awards received a large number of high calibre entries across 27 categories.

Gerard Ryan, CEO of ASOFIA, witnessed a distinct shift from the 'standard' shop and office fitout, to more elaborate fitouts in the health, fitness, leisure and high end fashion industries in this year's entries.

"The Hugo Boss store on King St, Sydney, completed by Sidgreaves Group, took out the National Fitout Award; as it was an absolutely exceptional fitout in every way.

"Every company who walked away with an Interior Fitout Award this year presented judges with a stand out project deserving of recognition.

"The industry has come through tough times stronger. It is refreshing to see members not simply achieving the 'same old thing', but rather challenging themselves and the industry by venturing into new directions.

"We have seen greater levels of creativity and innovation from our members showcasing their award winning talents," said Mr Ryan.

For the first time this year, the Awards program featured, The Australian Made Awards category, created to encourage individuals to use Australian materials, promote Australian manufacturing, and support local skilled resources. Stag Shopfitters took out the Retail Australian Made Award with their work at Paspaley at the Crown Complex, while Crosbie Projects walked away with the Commercial Australian Made Award for their work on their own Crosbie Office.

"The 2013 Interior Fitout Awards created a new benchmark in the standard of fitouts that is set to only move higher with each ensuing year.

"This elevated benchmark has been driven by a number of factors; client expectations; new technologies and the evolution of shopping centres into experiential environments.

"It is certainly a welcome shift for the profile of our industry. The ASOFIA members have done the industry proud," said Mr Ryan.
